New Hours

The Museum is open Wednesday to Saturday 1—5 pm. We've made a few updates to our permanent gallery, and we've "unboxed" some seldom seen items in our collection and put them on display!

Let us be reminded that the community in which we live, work, and play is situated on traditional, uncaded Algonquin First Nation territory. We acknowledge and thank the Anishinaabe people and express our respect and support for their rich history and culture.

Join us on one of four cemetery tours and get in the Halloween spirit! We'll be touring United Cemeteries and St. James Cemetery, in the daylight and in the dark!

Our tours are not so much scary as informative; you'll learn lots, meet people from the past, and come away with a new appreciation of our predecessors.

ITEMS FROM THE COLLECTION

A lock of Will's hair and a rose from off his coffin.
Feb 17th 1892

October brings thoughts of ghosts, goblins and scary skeletons. The Museum's collection includes many objects relating to death, funerals and mourning rituals. These artifacts include death notices, funeral cards, black bordered handkerchiefs, mementos of the deceased, and jet jewelry, meant to be worn during the mourning period.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING!

The Cameron family from Beckwith at Thanksgiving, 1924. At back, Madeline, Alex, and Grace. The boys in front are Madeline's boys George and Lloyd McLaren.

St. James Anglican Church Thanksgiving Decorations 1882.

Rose Poynter and friend, members of The Carleton Place Salvation Army with their Harvest Display at the old Bridge Street Hall. No date.
